ROSE ABOVE HUMBLE STATION

Thomas Britton a Curious Anomaly in English Social Life of Time of Queen Anne.

One of the most curious anomalies of the social life of London during the time of Queen Anne—called the Augustan age because of its great literary men—was a retail dealer in coal, named Thomas Britton, who was buried in Clerkenwell churchyard, London, on October 1, 1714. He exercised a humble craft, and occupied a habitation and wore a garb corresponding in plainness to his trade, and yet this singular man contrived by his various talents, and more especially his musical tastes, to assemble around him the most aristocratic company in London, and to be admitted into their society on equal terms. According to the practice of the time, he sold coal in small quantities, delivering it himself each morning. It is related that having finished his rounds, he joined a distinguished company that met each Saturday at one of the booksellers to discuss literature and exchange opinions respecting the latest books. This company contained such distinguished and powerful persons as the duke of Devonshire and the earls of Oxford, Pembroke, Sunderland and Winchester. Britton's house in Aylesbury street, Clerkenwell, was the meeting place of leaders in the fashionable society of London. On the ground floor was the warehouse for coal, and above, reached by a breakneck stairs from the outside, was a low narrow room, in which the musical companion entertained his grand and elegant guests. A portrait of this remarkable man is in the British museum.

NOTHING UNREAL ABOUT THIS

Only an Idealist Would Have Expected Anything Else From the Modern Gilded Youth.

Editor George Herace Lorimer was talking in a Philadelphia club about realism.

"I've got no time for realists," he said, "because they paint human nature worse than it is. Here's a typical realist story for you:

"A pretty girl was engaged to two young men simultaneously, and one evening the parlor maid came to her and said in a scared voice:

"Oh, Miss Bessie, them two gents what you're engaged to has called together, and somehow they've found out about both engagements."

"The pretty girl threw her cigarette into the fire pettishly.

"What the dickens shall I do?" she exclaimed.

"But the parlor maid smiled joyfully.

"I'll tell you what to do, Miss Bessie," she said. "I'll go downstairs and say you're crying in your room because your pop has lost all his money. Then you can be engaged for keeps to the gent what stays."

"That seems a good plan," said the pretty girl, and she lit another cigarette and waited.

"The maid was gone about three minutes. Then she returned with a frightened look on her white face.

"Miss Bessie, both on 'em has gone," she said."

A Preacher Fisherman.

He couldn't get rich preaching, so he gave it up and went fishing. After a season's work with a salmon fishing crew he had enough money to buy tickets to Norway for his wife, their four children and himself. Now Rev. H. B. Nyoen, former pastor of the Norwegian Baptist church of Tacoma, Wash., is on his way to Norway where he says preaching is more lucrative than in America.

His desire for money was due entirely to his longing to return to Norway. When his earnings as a fisherman were sufficient to buy the tickets he was willing to quit fishing. He will go to Harstad, Norway, where he will receive as pastor about $1,500 a year, with house and fuel. He received only $800 from his little church in Tacoma.

Expenses Low in Australia.

It is hard to imagine in this country, but, according to Mark Sheldon, Australian trade representative, his country is in a class by itself, so far as the cost of living is concerned.

Living costs have increased but 30 per cent, and a four-room cottage rents for from $20 to $25 a month. There is no I. W. W. and employers and labor unions are forced by law to arbitrate.

There is no new tax to pay the war debt, and the country has three crops of wheat to put on the market, according to Mr. Sheldon. Soldiers are paid $10 a week by the government until they secure jobs.

Admonishing Them.

"Looky here, now!" sternly said Constable Sam T. Slackputter, the redoubtable sleuth of Petunia. "This diabolical practice of matching pennies on the sidewalk has got to stop! Why, dod-blast it, every few days when I come along walking my beat, with my head high like an officer of the law prt to carry his'n, I fall over a bunch of you infernal young cusses and get my uniform all dusty!"—Kansas City Star.

HIS TREASURE WAS A ROCK

Overjoyed at Supposed Good Fortune, a Kentuckian Fainted When Plow Struck Hard Object.

For generations tradition has decreed that the Indians in the aboriginal days of Kentucky buried a pot of gold on the farm of John Williams in Casey county. A few days ago Mr. Williams decided to institute a systematic search for the treasure, the Davisville (Ky.) Messenger states. His powerful team of mules he hitched to a strong plow and in the locality where the gold is supposed to be hidden he began digging deep into the earth. It always has been claimed that the pot is of gigantic proportions. After considerable deep plowing had been done and numerous excavations made, Mr. Williams' mules came to a sudden standstill when the plow struck an object that could not be moved.

So certain that he had found the traditional pot, he was overjoyed and fainted. Passers-by hurried to his assistance and he was revived, and told those present what he was seeking. An excavation was made and it was proved the plow had struck a huge rock. However, the search is being continued.

There are a number of farms in Boyle county upon which it is alleged large quantities of silver and gold are buried. In most cases it is said to have been hidden by misers or frightened people during war times. Not a few early residents lost their lives by keeping their money in their homes and attempting to hold it against the intrusion of robbers. That was one reason treasures were buried.

Some years ago some parties near Paint Lick, in Garrard county, in wrecking an old house found several thousand dollars which had been hidden during war times. The man who had hidden the money died without telling the secret.

CONCERTS THROUGH THE AIR

Enjoyable Musical Program That Emanates From Doctor's Radio Experimental Laboratory.

War bulletins and important world happenings, now and then interspersed in a nightly musical program from the air, emanate from the radio experimental laboratory of Dr. Lee DeForest at Hightbridge, N. Y. Among the musical numbers on the nightly program are operatic selections, popular dance music, sentimental songs, Hawaiian medleys, and stirring band and orchestra photograph offerings.

In point of clearness it is said that the xylophone and the accordion are among the best instruments for wireless transmission, although the brass band and the human voice, especially if soprano, oftentimes are equally clear to all the listening amateur stations.

To transmit the human voice by wireless telephone the speaker or operator talks into an ordinary microphone. In the case of the musical selection, on the other hand, the microphone is placed inside the cabinet of a phonograph, where it can get the full volume of sound.—Scientific American.

Mistletoe Was Ancient Panacea.

Numerous curious and ridiculous superstitions as to methods of preventing disease were believed in years ago, and are not altogether extinct even today, it is said.

Much ancient faith clustered about the mistletoe root, which was carved in the form of a doll, dressed in fine clothes, and kept in a box or coffin concealed in some corner of the house. Each month it was washed in wine and water and freshly garbed.

Another universal cure was to carry a piece of mistletoe which had been cut from a tree by a golden sickle and caught in a white vessel as it fell. Metal scraped from a church bell or a piece of the rope was supposed to have a similar protective influence against disease, as also a cloth stained in the blood of a murderer, or the rope with which he was hanged.

Death of Death.

The time may not be far off when to lose a friend by death will be hardly more than to have him cross the ocean; when our own passing will be merely the happy setting sail for a new country. It may be that in the great war, which has furnished an orgy such as the world has never before seen, death as we have known it in all its agony of parting and uncertainty, has at least been glutted to the full, has reached its climax, and must hereafter diminish.

O people of the world, all things have died! It may be that now at last death itself is dying!—From the Atlantic Monthly.

All He Cared About.

Harold is fond of fowl. One day he came to the house breathless, "Oh, mamma," he said, "Jimmy's mamma ain't going to have no turkey for Christmas. Is we?"

"Well, son," answered the mother, "perhaps we will have duck or goose, or it may be just chicken."

"Oh, that's all right," said Harold. "Just so it's something with legs on it."

Swiss Farm Average Increased.

Because of the war Switzerland has increased its acreage under cultivation in grains by more than 20 per cent over the 1914 figures.

Noncombustible Linoleum.

Noncombustible linoleum, invented in Germany, includes in its composition a chemical which gives off a flame-quenching gas should it be ignited.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

Last Sunday was enrollment day and there was a fine attendance at Sunday school. A chorus of 60 voices, little and big, under the leadership of Mrs. Kennedy added much to the value of the program.

Idris Keith gave a recitation in line with the Sunday school lesson. The Junior and Primary classes sang, as special, "Brighten the Corner Where You Are."

Choir practice at 3 p. m. at Mrs. Kennedy's home was both enjoyed and made a profitable occasion.

Two changes in the Sunday school organization: viz.: Mrs. Edna Green resumes her position as teacher of the Senior Class, and Mrs. Mattie Knauss as teacher of the Intermediate Class, Clyde Green Enrollment secretary.

Sunday school at 10 A. M.

On Friday, January 16 at 2:30 p. m., District Superintendent Henry, of Liberal, will hold the Quarterly Conference at the church. All members, and especially official members are urged to be present.

Officers and teachers for the ensuing year were elected at the Sunday morning service of the Sunday school, and are as follows:

Superintendent, John A. Spohn; secretary-treasurer, D. D. Barrow; pianist, Bess M. Davis; Chorister, Mrs. B. F. Kennedy; librarian, H. D. Meese; birth-day secretary, Mrs. D. M. Kile; superintendent cradle roll, Mrs. S. N. Wible, teacher of Beginners class, Mable Humphrey; primary class, Mrs. D. D. Barrow; Junior girls class, Mrs. Alta Gardner; Junior Boys Class, Mrs. O. D. Smith; intermediate class, Mrs. Edna Green; Senior class, no selection; Men's class, N. A. Rice; Ladies class, Mrs. B. R. Steadman.

THE HARDWARE QUESTION SOLVED

Going to Build

No matter what you intend to build—whether it's a house, barn or merely a shelf in the pantry—you have to have tools. And the better the tools, the better the job. Poor tools are expensive at any price. They last only a short time and never do first-class work.

To be sure of getting tools worth buying, get them from us and you will be proud of your purchase. In addition to the tools, you most likely will need other things in the hardware line.

We have locks, doorknobs, hinges, brackets, nails and everything you will want.
